

Rosa María Abdelnour Granados is a lawyer, mediator, arbitrator, and trainer based in Costa Rica. She has a PhD in Law from the Universidad de Navarra, Spain, training as a specialist in strategic negotiation from the School of Negotiation of Universidad Pablo de Olavide, Sevilla, España, and a Master in Teaching from the Universidad Tecnológica de México. She was the dean of two Law Schools (Universidad Latina de Costa Rica, member of Laureate Universities, and Universidad Latinoamericana de Ciencia y Tecnología, ULACIT) and is a consultant for accreditation of law schools (SINAES, Sistema Nacional de Acreditación de la Educación Superior). She was a judge in the Constitutional Court in Costa Rica from 2003 to 2017. She published two books (Civil Liability Derived from the Punishable Fact and Educational Innovation in the Teaching and Learning of Law), as well as articles about ADR, teaching, and law. She is a consultant for CMI International Group in Cambridge, Massachusetts. She is a member of the ADR Commissions in the Bar in Costa Rica and the Supreme Court of San José, Costa Rica.